

Head of 2-1-1 Partnership leaving

The New Jersey 2-1-1 Partnership, which operates a statewide call center that provides human services resources, said Wednesday that Executive Director Laura Marx is leaving to become the new president and chief executive officer of the United Way of North Carolina.

Marx will stay at 2-1-1 Partnership until Sept. 30, according to a news release, which said the organization's board of directors plans to conduct a national search for a replacement.

The 2-1-1 system, which is a subsidiary of the United Way of New Jersey, is a statewide phone number, or dial code, that is free and accessible from anywhere in the state at all hours. The system functions as a call center that connects callers to resource specialists who assist them with state or local health and human services resources.
